

Don't Call Me A Fish!

"Jellyfish" is a confusing name because these marine creatures are not fish! Jellies are invertebrates, meaning they have no backbone. In fact they have no bones at all! Jellies are closely related to corals and sea anemones. Some types of jellies use special stinging cells to help capture their food.

